MOVING?

Did you know that San Antonio Security offers service anywhere in the country? When you move we can continue to provide you with the same excellent monitoring and service as you have now. In most cases, your current contract can be transferred and in some cases your current system can also be transferred if there is not an existing alarm in your new home. Just because a home has an existing alarm system does not mean you must use their services. You have a choice! You can choose to let San Antonio Security continue service without any interruptions. We strive to make the transitions easy and convenient for you. So, whether you are moving across town to a home or an apartment, or to the other side of the country, contact our office for continued customer service.

DOING AWAY WITH YOUR HOME PHONE?

Are you thinking about doing away with your home phone? Every day, more and more customers are choosing to drop their land line services at their home. Until recently, most systems required a land line to communicate with your monitoring station. Now you have a choice! San Antonio Security offers Full Reporting Cellular Units that communicate without land lines. These units have many benefits including preventing burglars from cutting your phone lines thus disabling your system's ability to send signals to your monitoring station. Our technicians are professionally trained to install and program these units to increase your security. Contact our service department to discuss the options for your personal security system.
